In detail

What he offers you

In his lectures Clemens de Lange talks about the breakdown of social fabric and its consequences for our willingness to participate in politics, voluntary work, associations in neighborhoods, etc. He explains that modern technology is playing an active role in this and that a new approach as developed by him in his Social Cohesion Design methodology 3-I may enhance social cohesion by developing so called "Community Integrated ProductSystems" providing members of a community the facility to participate. He presents interesting cases that have been developed these last 5 years and takes the audience into his fascinating innovative "social cohesion design" thinking. The audience is convinced: "Social Cohesion is...designable!".

How he presents

With his enthusiasm and optimistic personality Clemens de Lange is an inspiration for each organization that takes a keen interest in social sustainability as enhanced by "community integrated thinking". To solve the worlds key challenges (scarce energy, resources, climate, economy) he stresses that new methods for improving social cohesion and solidarity between members of a community is of key-importance for our future.
